

SNAP ADVOCACY TRAINING

For Community Organizations and Tribes Serving Alaskans

Ongoing delays in SNAP application processing have left thousands of Alaska households waiting weeks or months for their benefits. Alaska Legal Services Corporation (ALSC) is partnering with community organizations and Tribes to expand access to SNAP advocacy.

TRAINING OVERVIEW

After completing the SNAP and Ethics trainings, participants will be able to:

- Help individuals with delayed or denied SNAP applications.
- Request fair hearings.
- Negotiate with State representatives.
- Represent clients during SNAP fair hearings, when appropriate.
- Share legal information about SNAP rights and options.

TRAINING DETAILS

Courses

- SNAP Advocacy
- Ethics

Format

- Self-paced online

Time Commitment

- Approximately 3-6 hours per course

ORGANIZATIONAL COMMITMENT

There is no cost for the Community Justice Worker (CJW) training courses. We only ask for a commitment to either of the following:

OPTION 1:

Allow trained staff to represent SNAP applicants during work hours, either independently or as volunteers with ALSC's pro bono program.

OR

OPTION 2:

Allow trained staff to share information about the rights of SNAP applicants and recipients during their regular work.

Community
Justice Worker
Resource Center

Funding Provided By:

Trust
Alaska Mental Health
Trust Authority

FOR MORE INFORMATION:

Visit: alsc-law.org/cjw/courses

Email: cjwrc@alsc-law.org